

PFFC - A socialist philosophy

The motto of our team is this:

Equality. Fraternity.

The reason is our common thread;

A socialist philosophy.

The thread begins in Harwich Town,

The seat of leader Comrade Hugh.

His message is 'One man, One house' –

Though chairmen may, of course, have two.

The second-homes-for-chairmen rule

Is just as well. By happy chance

He has a modest ten-roomed place

That's tucked away in Southern France.

That point aside, his ways ensure

His left-wing views are clear to all:

Reject consumer global brands.

Embrace the philosophical.

With excess and convenience

He has not truck. That is until

He sets about his mini-bar

Eclipsing even Rooney's bill

The Marxist thread runs on and down

To Comrade Geoff, who's crystal clear:

Rioja is the workers' drink!

Let's do away with bourgeois beer!

What club could Gaffer truly follow

But one that gives the fans a voice?

Not foreign owned. No rich man's toy.

So QPR's the natural choice.

And Geoff is clear on this key point:

Good communists consider that

The workers' cause is much advanced

By having an Italian flat.

This socialism thrives amongst

The players who are on the park.

It's hard to single one man out

But, oh, the thread is strong with Clarke.

In Sicily he shamed us all –

Our easy lives – by seeing fit

To travel with no bags or funds

Nor even any football kit.

And so we see in Chairman Hugh,

In Comrade Geoff and Clarkee too,

The values of PFFC,

A socialist philosophy.
